RHYTHMS IN RAGTIME

Those toe-tapping ragtime tunes Disneyland guests hear on Main Street, U.S.A. come from the patio of Coca Cola Refreshment Corner. On piano: remarkable Rod Miller, who pounds them out in an enthusiastic honkytonk style all his own.

Rod's made that sound a cheerful part of the Disneyland experience. In the seven years he's been playing for Park guests he's run through more than 100,000 songs.

He's worn out eight pianos!

RHYTHMS IN RAGTIME continued

Surprisingly, he doesn't know how to read music, but he does know more than 500 songs by heart. To learn a new song, he listens to a tape or record, then adds his own flourishes to adapt it to his own unique ragtime sound.

He's able to play an amazing 22 notes per second at top speed, rolling through songs like "Mame" and "Meet Me in St. Louis" in less than a minute or two.

Those hearing Rod for the first time listen in awe as he hits the keys faster than the eye can see. Many cannot believe he is really playing. They think the piano is mechanical and that Rod is just faking it.

Even when he plays slow, he plays fast. Wide-eyed youngsters flock around the keyboard to watch as Rod's nimble fingers fly from key to key, piling note upon note, song after song.

He plays everything from Gershwin to Joplin, from old favorites like "Roll Out the Barrel" to new ones like "The Entertainer" (theme from The Song)—all of them in that indescribably catchy rhythm called ragtime.

Twenty-eight-year-old Rod started playing piano only ten years ago. As a teenager in Staples, Minnesota, he bought and rebuilt an old player piano, the kind that uses perforated paper rolls to move the keys. It looked like fun, so Rod sat down at the keyboard.

He practiced several hours a day for over a year, then began playing professionally. Two years after he moved to California, he came to Disneyland.

Rod's smile, as bright and cheerful as the music he plays, has won a lot of friends. Many guests, on repeat visits to Disneyland, make a special point of stopping by to say hello and listen as Rod plays a favorite song.

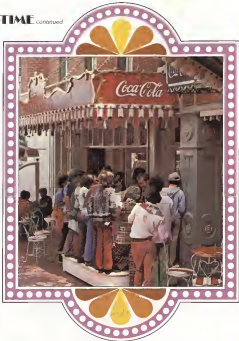

His most frequent request these days is for "The Entertainer," followed by "Maple Leaf Rag," "12th Street Rag" and "Tiger Rag." Other requests range from "I'm In the Mood for Love" (played in honky-tonk rhythms) to "Cabaret," "Hello Dolly" and "Sweet Gypsy Rose."

"I love pianos that are out of tune," says Rod. "They have an old, authentic ragtime sound that way."

Whatever he plays, Rod's music is sure to make almost everyone smile. Such upbeat tunes as "Music, Music, Music" and "Ain't We Got Fun" typify Rod's buoyant style.

As pleased listeners walk away from Rod's piano to enjoy the other wonders of Disneyland, you can hear them humming a song—in ragtime, of course!

Funny about our desserts.

For years we've been telling you about the delicious breakfasts, lunches and dinners we serve 24 hours a day, seven days a week. But a funny thing is happening. People are beginning to tell us how much they enjoy our desserts. No matter. We're proud of both. So come have a meal with your dessert.

Or vice versa.

OULS, GHOSTS and GHASTLY THINGS!!!

Don't be scared to go into that big old house on the edge of New Orleans Square just because it's filled with ghosts, goblins and other eerie surprises is no reason to shake in your boots.

Or is it?

The fact is, Disneyland's Haunted Mansion is as creepy as it looks, chock-full of unholy splints, unexplained noises and unearthly screams.

But those things can't hurt you, can they? What's a blood-curdling laugh between friends, after all? Just a bit of fun, you understand. Just fun.

Or is it?

Certainly, no harm can come to you once you've walked down the long, dusty corridor of haunted portraits and climbed aboard your own, very black Doom Buggy.

This smooth-rolling car carries you and the disembodied voice of the Mansion's Ghost Host on a dark journey through the labyrinth of rooms and attics that make up the Haunted Mansion.

On your way, you'll see such out-of-this-world wonders as a dim hallway that beckons you to enter but offers no end, a seance conducted by a bodiless head in a crystal ball, the Grand Hall, where you can watch in utter fascination as the ghosts of a long-ago party appear and disappear as they dance to the echoes of yesterday's music.

The musty Mansion attic is filled with trunks, chairs, dress forms and a considerable number of bats, spider webs and other ghastly things, plus a group of ghouls who are just dying to meet you.

And if you still feel a bit jumpy, a little nervous or a trifle uneasy, then you can relax as your Doom Buggy glides you through the decrepit graveyard adjoining the Mansion.

Asaurogh!

Just the place to make your skin crawl and hair stand up, isn't it? You might even wish you were someplace else. Anyplace else. Except, perhaps, that decaying crypt over there.

This playground for poltergeists is everything you never dreamed of, a regular zombie's delight. This is the place where a quartet of marble busts comes to life and joins the ghostly spirits in singing "Grim Grinning Ghosts," the Haunted Mansion's theme song.

This is the place of chill winds, an uneasy gatekeeper, a graveyard picnic and other nightmarish sights and apparitions too spooky to describe.

Yes, the Haunted Mansion is full of spine-tingling surprises, all right. When you're done, you'll probably think it wasn't so bad. You'll be tempted to go back for another ride. After all, you made it through once, didn't you? It's not so scary.

Or is it?

TO: INTERESTED PARTIES

SUBJECT: SPACE MOUNTAIN CONSTRUCTION

Space Mountain construction is proceeding on schedule and should be completed about the middle of 1977. When finished, Space Mountain will be able to accommodate more than 2100 guests per hour. Using specially designed six-passenger vehicles in tandem, dispatched every 20 seconds, guests will travel over 3000 feet of track at speeds up to 28 miles per hour.

The main structure is 200 feet in diameter and contains more than one million cubic feet of space. The rest of the Space Mountain complex contains a large amphitheater for presentation of live entertainment, a fast-food facility, a merchandising shop specializing in Character clothing and a large, modern arcade, featuring themed electronic games.

A planetarium-type pre-show, using lights reflected from passing Space Mountain vehicles, will entertain and inform guests as they move up an ascending ramp to the loading dock. Guests can also view the attraction in actual operation before boarding. And former astronaut Gordon Cooper appears in a short film explaining what is to happen on the ride. There is even a special "chicken" ramp for those who have a change of heart and want to leave before boarding.

Cooper views Space Mountain as "an attempt to give people the most realistic feeling of what they might encounter in space without actually taking a real space flight. As we gain new knowledge and insight concerning space, Space Mountain will be improved upon in true Disney fashion."

The space journey takes its passengers on a fast-moving voyage through a three-sided, 90-foot-long solar tunnel, giving guests the feeling of traveling through infinite space. Shooting stars, diving meteors and incandescent comets streak through the black void as the cars orbit a glowing satellite, then plunge on past strange stars and unknown galaxies. At re-entry, voyagers fly through a multicolored vapor curtain before arriving safely back on Earth.

NOTE: This attraction was designed and engineered by WED Enterprises, the master planning, research and development arm of the Disney organization. It is quite similar to the Space Mountain attraction at Walt Disney World in Florida. We think that Space Mountain at Disneyland is going to be one of the most exciting, entertaining and thrilling attractions in America.

A Visit to the INDIAN TRADING POST

Bear Country's picturesque Indian Trading Post is home for dozens of colorful and skillfully crafted items reflecting the culture of the first Americans—the Indians.

With its sod roof (which, by the way, grows real grass), log cabin construction and stone fireplace inside, the Trading Post is as authentic-looking as its wares.

Items range from genuine Cherokee headdresses to hand-made pottery from Colorado's Ute Mountain Ute Tribe. These beautiful pots, vases, bowls, pitchers and other pottery items are each one-of-a-kind. Every piece is hand-molded, decorated individually, handpainted and signed by the artist. No two designs are alike.

Other handcrafted items include blankets featuring unique Indian patterns, the famous Kachina dolls of the Hopi Tribe and handwoven baskets. There are moccasins, toy tom-toms and tomahawks, beaded pouches and belts—all reflecting traditional Indian designs.

And from artisans and craftsmen of the Navajo, Hopi and Zuni Tribes come a variety of exquisite turquoise and silver jewelry: rings, bracelets and necklaces of rich color and elegance.

The beauty of native American designs and the skills of many Indian artists combine to offer guests a tempting choice of truly unusual items. All of them presented with pride at Disneyland's unusual shop, Bear Country's Indian Trading Post.

PORTRAIT OF FIVE FREEDOMS

Walt Disney

Freedom! Perhaps the most cherished of all American rights.

To commemorate America's 200th year, Disney artists have designed a spectacular new 53-foot mural for Gulf Oil Corporation, and it has been installed in The Walt Disney Story featuring Great Moments with Mr. Lincoln. Located in the Main Street Opera House, the attraction is presented free by Gulf Oil.

Beautifully painted in oils, the 57½-foot-high mural portrays five aspects of America's heritage of freedom.

Four of these freedoms are derived from a speech by President Franklin D.

Roosevelt in 1941: Freedom of Speech, Freedom of Worship, Freedom from Want, and Freedom from Fear.

To these four freedoms is added a fifth: Free Enterprise.

Twelve Americans who achieved great accomplishments by exercising this fifth freedom are depicted on the mural. They include Alexander Graham Bell, telephone inventor; Thomas A. Edison, inventor of electrical devices; Andrew Carnegie, iron and steel industrialist; Orville and Wilbur Wright, aviation pioneers.

Also, Henry Ford, automobile manufacturer; Pearl S. Buck, Pulitzer prize-winning novelist; George Washington Carver, agricultural chemist and educator; David Sarnoff, communications executive; Robert H. Goddard, pioneer in rocket propulsion; Albert Einstein, physicist; and Walt Disney, family entertainment producer and, of course, founder and creator of Disneyland and Walt Disney World.

Along with portraits of each person, vignettes of their contributions through the American free enterprise system are blended in a flowing montage across the mural. Facsimile signatures of each individual are also shown.

The mural adorns one wall of the

George Washington Carver

Pearl S. Buck

exit hallway of the Opera House and is seen by audiences as they leave Disneyland's inspiring Audio-Animatronics presentation of Abraham Lincoln.

Lincoln believed strongly in the freedom to prosper from individual efforts. A quote from The Great Emancipator, in fact, keynotes the Fifth Freedom Mural, Lincoln said:

I believe each individual is naturally inclined to do as he pleases with himself and the fruit of his labor so far as it in no wise interferes with any other man's rights.

To celebrate the unique character and principles upon which this nation was founded, Disneyland proudly presents to its guests this stirring portrait of five American freedoms.

CAFE on the SQUARE

Dining out on the patio of Town Square Cafe means more than just enjoying a delicious breakfast, lunch or dinner. It also gives Disneyland guests a chance to relax and enjoy the small-town peacefulness of Main Street, U.S.A., and to watch as young children rush up to Mickey Mouse, Pluto or Goofy just a few feet away.

This charming cafe on Main Street's Town Square offers guests a quiet touch of yesterday, where the food is good and the pretty waitresses friendly.

Town Square, like the rest of Main Street, is a picture of America at the crossroads of an era, in the years 1890-1910. Here the gas lamp is giving way to the electric light, and a newcomer, the sputtering horseless carriage, has challenged Old Dobbin to the streetcar right-of-way.

If you listen carefully, you'll even hear the sounds of those times—the honking of a bulb horn on a motor car, the clang of a streetcar's bell; and the rhythmic clip-clop of horseshoes on the street.

On Main Street and its Town Square

Square, Disneyland has recaptured America's turn-of-the-century atmosphere. Authenticity is everywhere, from the shops and costumes of the merchants to the waiting room of the Town Square Cafe.

The quiet restaurant begins each day by offering a tasty selection of traditional, but terrific, breakfast fare each morning.

To start, there is fresh grapefruit or melon in season, or delicious orange juice from Sun-kist, chilled grapefruit or tomato juice.

And in no time at all, Town Square chefs can prepare dishes of large, country-fresh eggs cooked to order. Complementing them is a choice of sizzling sausage, crisp bacon, a slice of Oscar Mayer ham or a tender beef patty. All egg dishes are served with fried tater rounds, buttermilk biscuits and honey.

For something special, there are golden brown waffles, served with bacon, ham or sausage. Many Town Square breakfasters choose a waffle topped with juicy strawberries and trimmed with a frothy ring of smooth whipped cream.

Even while eating, though, Park guests have the chance to enjoy the special pleasures of Disneyland

Just outside the trellis-enclosed patio lies Town Square, where the Disneyland Band performs each day. There is also a fine view of the Disneyland Railroad Station.

Most of all, guests sitting at the cafe's umbrella-topped tables can see the happy faces of young children as they gather around Mickey Mouse, Winnie the Pooh or one of the other charming Characters of Disneyland.

Standing only a few feet from Town Square Cafe, the Characters attract people simply by being there. Children and adults flock around them for handshakes and hugs as others take pictures for posterity.

The cafe also offers guests a pleasant indoor dining area. There, beneath a ceiling filled with twinkling stars, diners can enjoy their meal as smiling, efficient waitresses keep cups filled with fresh coffee and patrons happy.

Lunch and dinner meals are a treat at Town Square Cafe, too. The menu offers a number of tempting sandwiches, from an always satisfying Town Square Club Deluxe to a French Dip, with thin slices of hot beef piled high on a delicious French roll and dipped in the beef's own natural juices.

For salad lovers, there's a choice of a generous Chef Salad Bowl or Seafood Louis, a combination of pink shrimp, tuna, crisp greens and hard-boiled eggs, all topped with thick Louis dressing.

And when there's a chill in the air, Town Square guests will particularly enjoy a bowl of steaming soup-of-the-day, served piping hot to warm the insides.

Adding a bit of spice to the menu is zesty chili and beans, served in a bowl or as Chili Size over a grilled hamburger patty. Onions, of course.

To top it all off, there are desserts of fantasia cheese cake, ice cream, German chocolate cake or fresh-baked apple pie.

Whether enjoying a meal at Town Square Cafe or just relaxing with a cup of coffee or a cold drink, guests find the hospitable atmosphere a true delight. It's a perfect place to pause during a busy day filled with the fun, thrills, fantasy and adventure of Disneyland—the Happiest Place on Earth. ♥
